Submission: Dear Sir and Madam, As a resident of the Central Coast I see no need for the airport to be there at all. With Newcastle to the north there will never be a proposition for a competing and viable regional airport on the coast. The history of its creation is one of illegality, failure to address community issues and lack of due process. We don't want the potential noise or pollution any changes to the act would bring. It certainly shouldn't be expanded as this will damage environmentally sensitive land. The Aero Club can move to Belmont as it has previously planned. The land would be better used as a light industrial zone creating more jobs than any airport. The monies saved, I understand it loses the Council several hundred thousands of dollars each year, on supporting a very small airport could be better spent on addressing the high youth unemployment on the coast. Yours sincerely, Stephen Pearson
