In the proposed building plans for the Glenfield area have been given any consideration to the effects on future and current residents. Like most ideas they always seem good at the time. Then decision makers start putting the ideas on paper, then effects on the environment and people seems to vanish. Green areas vanish, goodbye trees and goodbye every thing that lives therein which are vital to wellbeing of any community. All these lost, dare I say, miles, are replaced by ugly housing and high-rise buildings with not a bright colour in site. We have been treated to browns and blacks etc. Not exactly an antidote for the problem of growing depression. The effect of loss of nice spaces. The unwanted results, goodbye community spirit, birds, bees and butterfly.

Regarding the brochure of the Dept of Planning & Industry, Page 4, of the Executive Summary are, or seemingly to be ignored. The proposed INTERMOGEL road will be responsible for the destruction of fairly newly built housing and land from the Agricultural High School. Once again resulting in destruction of local habitat. Plus of course stress on the community.

Stress and health? long time recovery. Habitat almost impossible.

Yours Faithfully,
Michael Allen MPA
