Putting an airport in a basin that is already polluted is going to be a disaster.

Sydney does not need a second airport and western Sydney definitely does not need more pollution - is the government taking any notice at all of what is happening to our country or only interested in money.

Western Sydney is already experiencing heat and humidity it has never had before - what it needs is more trees to help stop the pollution not more cement....

I am starting to despair for our country if things like this continue.....needless and destructive and so harmful for the children of tomorrow
