Submission: To whoever shall read this... Thank you for taking the time to read my submission. I considered making a full written submission, but then realised that the government really doesn't care for feedback from the public and will continue to do what they believe is most important...the economy and helping their developer mates. I do love the token button option to make a submission for the illusion that we live in a democratic society and feedback and consultation has been done (insert rolling laughing emoji here). So instead I am submitting my thoughts about the so called 'aerotropolis' and maybe give the reader a laugh or something to think about (however I doubt the later will happen). So have they called it aerotropolis' to try make people think this is a great idea? I do love how the plan talks about making this a 'cool green city'. Clearly the person who thought of this hasn't visited the actual area on a 45 degree summer day??? and on top of this think that destroying the last remanents of forest there and pouring a whole lot of contrete and buildings was actually going to making tihs place 'cooler' and 'green'. They may also have overlooked the flood plain area and thought concreting it was going to help? I do love how the plan starts to acknowledge the traditional owner and the Wianamatta Creek, before this gets completely destroyed by this development. In reading the plan I was not able to find any information about how the the mental health, quality of life and wellbeing of existing residents, flora and fauna of Greater Western Sydney and the Blue Mountains was going to be preserved. The Blue Mountains area is currently considered World Heritage and the impact of a 24/7 no curfew airport running right next to it will have a detrimental impact of the natural environment as well as the residents of this area. There will be significant noise and chemical pollution this area will be exposed to. There needs to be plans in place around how this will be mitigated. The current 'desensitising' by increasing the number of planes flying over the mountains has not gone un noticed. The impact has already be detrimental, I can't imagine the impact when the airport is 80km closer and runs 24/7. I find it interesting that the plan only addresses new developments...again showing the focus and priority of development. In addition the plan doesn't address how it will manage the huge increase of petrol tankers on Sydney roads to transport aeroplane fuel to the other side of the city. Geez if the government thought all the migrants were clogging up the M4, try are going to love sitting in traffic amongst fuel tankers (emitting even more pollution into our environment)...however I do feel this is the read aim of the government I wonder if the planning committee or whoever writes the fancy documents and suggests they need to open the plans for feedback, read about the recent court decision in the UK declaring the planned extra runway at Heathrow is contradicting the countries stance of addressing the impacts of climate change. Oh but then I should laugh...our goverment don't actually beleive in climate change...oh no they say they do but say they are doing something about it...oh thats right they want to build another airport (not a runway but a whole airport!) so as well as pouring a whole lot of concrete into the ground we want to increase of the the biggest polluters more often and more frequently and around the clock! And hey now with this Covid 19 Pandemic, its great timing to build a new aerotropolis. Another gateway to introduce pandemic diseases into our population (the over populated western Sydney) as well as a great gateway to new fungus and disease which will impact the natural habitat in the neighbouring Blue Mountains. Thank you for reading my submission and no doubt ignoring it as a rant of a cynical disillusioned resident. Kind regards, Angela
