Dear Team,
Thank you for the opportunity to respond to the Land Use Implementation Plan.
First and foremost a 24hour international airport in Western Sydney will have catastrophic health impacts on the residents and therefore should not go ahead. If the governments of New South wales and Australia continue to ignore health and climate scientists and the airport is constructed I urge the following be considered.
Suggest the Department of Environment review its proposals made in the LUIP and make the area designated as agribusiness to be a priority and changed to stage 1 for the following reasons:
The economic benefits to the area from both construction of intensive food factories and production.
Academic and economic opportunities from education and research opportunities into agricultural production that smart planning would enable.
Infrastructure is already being planned for stages north and south of the agribusiness zone therefore transport will already be provided.
Many land holders and residents in the northern section of the designated area "agribusiness" have come together and are interested in making available their comparably larger land holdings (compared to the southern section) for such infrastructure. There is estimated to be over 1000 acres available going west from the airport toward Wallacia and north of the large dairy owned by Leppington Pastoral Company.
If the agribusiness area was developed in stage 1, locally grown food would be ready for export on the first plan to leave Badgery's Creek.
I strongly support the idea of land conservation however, fail to see the value of conserving land in the middle of this environmental disaster that the governments are thrusting upon us. Why put aside 20 hectares when it is surrounded by industry and 24hour aircraft noise?
Please withhold my name and address from publication.
Thank you
