I object very strongly to using public reserves as offsets for developers: The Terms of Reference (Section 3.1.5) do not include public bushland reserves in their definition of already-protected bushland. This is completely unacceptable. This will allow developers to use the public reserves that were fought and paid for by the public, as their environmental offsets. Also local farmers must not be denied vital conservation funding to protect bushland on farms. Section 3.1.5 must be amended to include 'public bushland reserves' in the definition of lands already protected.

The public must be given the final say in planning our communities. The Terms of Reference must require a summary of conservation priorities as stated by local communities from local, face-to-face community workshops.
