Submission: I am completely against development of this area and strongly feel that biodiversity that lives here must be protected. I don't believe sub-plan B properly accounts for the survival of koalas. I think this government needs to move beyond the idea of mass development and protecting the construction industry and focus their priorities on natural habitat. Natural corridors aren't big enough, habitat is being disrupted, and more humans and domestic animals will encroach in nature. When can this stop? Can't alternatives be considered? Such as looking at how to make better use of existing space to house people.
