Hi Guys

Rosebery should not be exempt from SEPP, residents should be able to build what they want provided it goes through CDC, we cannot live in the past, those rules that were put in 100 years ago are not relevant today and we need to move with the times and not get stuck in the past, the old homes that are built no longer meet the needs of families today as the layout is isolated and not family friendly that's why people choose to change their house designs to make it better. It's our property and we want to make changes to make it better than we should be able to, those who oppose to change their own property that's fine, but don't force your opinions on other home owners who want to build a better home for their family.
Thanks
